

Clicking a friend's name from either of these two pages <----> takes you to a page similar to your own user page, but with fewer editing options

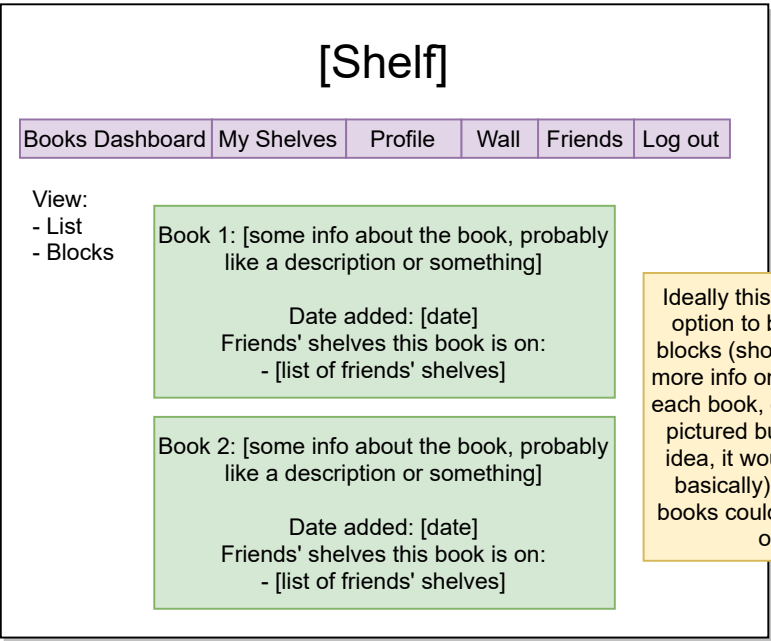

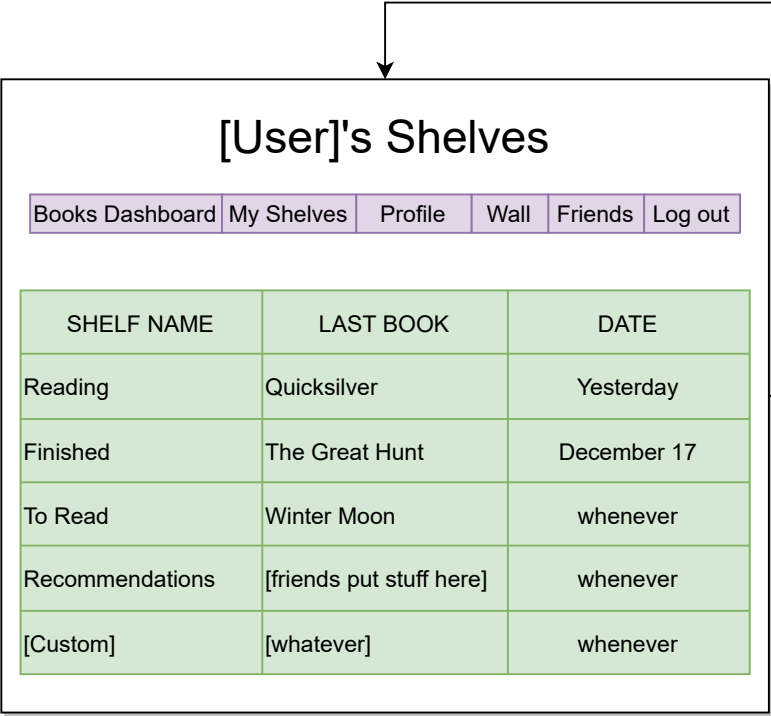

These two pages (Books Dashboard and an individual Books page) will ideally be visible to a not-logged-in user, so they can get a feel for what the site is like. Personal profiles, shelves, etc. are only visible once logged in.

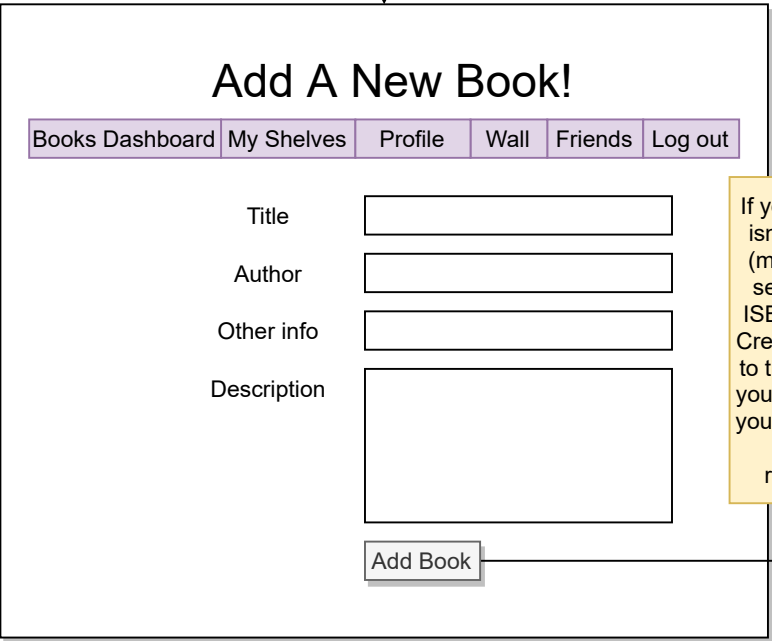

When you add a book to your Finished shelf, I'm thinking of adding a pop-up asking if you'd like to post a message to your wall, with some pre-populated text that the user can edit before posting. Maybe this would be a setting that the user could change.

Recommending a book to a friend sends it to their "Recommended" shelf. They will have the opportunity to approve or deny it before it shows up publicly.

This page will be connected to the ISBN book database, so you can find the book you are looking for and get all of its info without having to type it in manually

Ideally this page has the option to be viewed as blocks (shown here), with more info on display about each book, or as a list (not pictured but you get the idea, it would be a table basically) where more books could be viewed at once.

If you want to add a book that isn't in the database already (maybe it's a new book, or a self-published book with no ISBN), you can do that here. Creating the book would add it to the database and then take you to that book's page. Once you're on the book's page, you can add it to a shelf or recommend it to a friend.
